WITH WOMEN TODAY

Ohio seems to be getting about all of the honors which are being handed out, politically speaking. The presidential candidates of the two big parties and of the Prohibition party are all three natives of Ohio, and now a woman native of Sandusky, Ohio, has added another laurel to that state's crown. She is Miss Marie Caroline Brehm, who has the distinction of being the first woman ever to act as permanent chairman of a national political convention. Miss Brehm presided over the Prohibition convention held recently at Lincoln, Neb., and in this capacity was pronounced an unqualified success.

Miss Brehm was particularly fitted for her position because of her long interest in the W. C. T. U. She has been a W. C. T. U. lecturer since 1891, and has lectured on temperance and suffrage all over the country. In 1909 she was the United States delegate to the 12th International Congress on Alcoholism held in London. In 1911 she was again a delegate, this time to the World's Congress on Alcoholism, The Hague, Holland. In September of 1913 Miss Brehm was appointed by President Wilson to act as United States delegate at the World's Anti-Alcohol Congress at Milan, Italy.

At the recent Prohibition convention there was some talk of nominating Miss Brehm for president or vice president and thus giving her more honor, but it was finally decided to make her permanent chairman instead. Her home at present is in Long Beach, Calif.

Women Outvote Sleepy Men.

The women of Nyack, N. Y., recently arose in their might and beat the men of the town at politics. There was a vacancy in the board of education. Election was to be held at night in the schoolhouse and those who were intending to vote were listening to a eulogy upon the only person, a man, who was nominated. Suddenly the door opened and a veritable army of women entered and immediately nominated Mrs. Grace A. Sayers for the office. Soon balloting was started and it was found that the men were losing out. Scouts went out to bring in more voters, but the men had retired and refused to get up to vote. Not so the women; they not only came but they got their daughters up to come with them. One woman is reported to have said to her young son: "Run over and tell Mary and Helen to get up and come over here right away. Tell them if they don't come they shall not go to that dance tomorrow night."

A man tried the same tactics on his sons, but he got no results and the report goes on to say that the woman candidate was elected by two votes.
